

Tyrone Sullivan
Administrator
Information Technology Division

Tyrone Sullivan is the Administrator for the Information Technology Division. He is a 30-year career service employee of the department, who served as Information Systems Director for Employment Security prior to his appointment as Administrator.

Tyrone began work with the department in 1981 as an entry-level applications programmer and advanced through levels of increasing responsibility. He built the first Local Area Network (LAN) for the department and launched the agency's participation in the State of Tennessee's Wide Area Network (WAN) with locations in more than 90 remote offices. Under his direction a team created the Intranet Web site for the department.

He has an A.S. degree in Business Data Processing from Nashville State Technical Institute and an A.A. degree in Business Management from Draughton's Junior College. He is active in several professional groups with the State of Tennessee.
